- THE BEST IN HEMEROCALLIS -

7007 Palmer Road
Kansas City, Missouri

INTRODUCTORY

As we enter into a new year, we again go about our pleasurable business of introducing the Hemerocallis (Daylily) to those who have not known the carefree gardening associated with this plant. We have watched the spark of interest kindle about the genus Hemerocallis, break into flame and sweep the country like wildfire, as may be evidenced by looking through any garden magazine.

Lenington Gardens has grown also, with its 1954 volume of business being more than seven times that of the previous year. We are very grateful and quite proud, too, of our many customers who have made our business what it is today. It has been our sincerest pleasure to serve our customers and we hope for that continued privilege. To those of you receiving our catalog for the first time, we welcome the opportunity of serving your needs . . . plant-wise. I am sure that once you know Lenington Gardens, you will have a place among our many regular customers.

The spread of interest in Hemerocallis is only natural, since we have here a flowering perennial so versatile it hardly knows limitation. Practically immune to disease or insect pests, it requires no frequent and burdensome spraying or dusting schedules. Its soil requirements are so minor that it may be grown in any garden area as a specimen or companion plant . . . and may be used in many double purpose duties such as living mulches around small or open foliaged trees, for retention of terraces, edgings along drives, or naturalizing. The blooming span is wide and may be made continuous from early spring until late fall by selection of varieties. There is also a wide range of height and colors from which to choose because of the wide variation of varietal characteristics.

As we have mentioned many times before, we welcome your letters of inquiry concerning those hard-to-get or scarce varieties. We are growing several hundred varieties too short in supply to list in the catalog and we may have the varieties you are seeking.

Again we thank you and wish to offer this reminder

When thinking of HEMEROCALLIS .

. THINK of LENINGTON GARDENS

HEMEROCALLIS (DAYLILIES)

HEMEROCALLIS will supply a maximum of beauty for a minimum of care but will repay the gardener for any extra attention given them. They are long-lived plants and should be planted at least two feet apart as they will spread and fill the gaps, yet will not become overcrowded for many years.

PLANTING TIME may be anytime the ground is tillable, but spring or fall planting is recommended. It should be remembered that fall planting in northern gardens must be done far enough in advance of cold weather to allow the plants time to establish themselves in order to prevent heaving. It must also be remembered that newly set plants must have abundant moisture to insure new root development. This is especially true in cases of plants set in advance of, or during, hot, dry weather. Hemerocallis correctly planted and once established are quite capable of taking care of themselves, but do require the above considerations at planting.

SOIL REQUIREMENTS: They will thrive in almost any garden soil, provided the soil is not poorly drained or too heavily shaded and of reasonable fertility. Complete planting instructions are sent with each order.

FIRST YEAR RESULTS: No variety should be judged by its performance the first year. Only after a daylily becomes established . . . usually by the second or third year . . . will it produce characteristic bloom. Of course, no bloom or performance can be judged as normal during unusual or extreme weather conditions.

LENINGTON VARIETIES

Due to the severe drouth condition which we have experienced for the past three years, it has been impossible for us to complete our final appraisal of varieties that were slated for introduction in 1955. We will make final selection this year and offer them in our 1956 catalog. Below are listed our previous introductions.

BONNER CHARM (L15-1) — A low growing, very light Empire yellow self with wide, crinkled, slightly recurving petals. Sepals also re-curve slightly. The 5 inch crepe-like full flowers are borne on 24 inch erect scapes, which make it ideal for the front of the border. Blooms over a long period. June-July. SE

GYPSY ROBE (L94-9) — Ruffled, slightly re-curving, golden buff petals with a rich orange veining and a wide, light midrib which is very prominent after a day in the hot sun. The large greenish-yellow throat is topped with a coral-red eye-zone which appears only on the petals. The lower third of the stamens are the same shade of green as the throat. The flower is just as fresh looking in the evening as it was in the morning and has a lot of sheen at all times. Very well branched. 32 in. June-July-Aug. SE

LADY BONN (L05-21) — Light canary yellow flowers, that glisten as though they had been sprinkled with diamond dust. The blooms are more than 6 inches in diameter and are carried gracefully on 38 in. scapes. Flowers remain open until late at night. June-July. E
